Morbio 4 (120 k)

103A, 18. Gingra

This image shows a severely damaged historical document, likely a manuscript or a formal letter, written in a dark ink on a light-colored, heavily stained and discolored page. The paper is riddled with large, irregular white holes of varying sizes, suggesting insect damage or鼠害 (rat infestation). A prominent circular hole is visible in the lower-left quadrant. The text is written in two columns, though only the right-hand column is clearly legible. The right-hand column contains several paragraphs of dense Latin or Old French text, with some words appearing to be in bold or larger script. The left-hand column is mostly illegible due to the damage. In the bottom-left corner, there is a small, circular red seal with some text on it, which appears to be a library or archival mark. The overall condition of the document is poor, with significant water damage and discoloration throughout.
