Geneuss, Julia

Dr. Julia Geneuss, LL.M. (NYU) is a Senior Researcher and Lecturer in Criminal Law at the University of Hamburg (Germany). She graduated in Freiburg, holds a Dr. iur. from Humboldt University Berlin and a LL.M. from NYU School of Law (USA). For her doctoral thesis on the prosecution of international crimes in Germany, in particular under the principle of universal jurisdiction, she was awarded the Humboldt University Law Faculty's prize for the best dissertation in criminal law, as well as a second prize of the Deutscher Studienpreis 2014 awarded by the Körber Foundation for outstanding dissertations. She is a member of the Editorial Committee of Oxford University Press's Journal of International Criminal Justice and was a Graduate Editor of NYU's Journal of International Law and Politics.